B. G. Salzgeber Kills His Wife and Suicides

This city was startled with the news received here last Thursday night, stating that Baird G. Salzgeber, of Indianapolis, had killed his wife and then committed suicide. The rash act is supposed to have been committed about 4:30 o'clock that morning, but it was not until 8:30 in the evening that the bodies were discovered. Mrs. Salzgeber before her marriage twenty-two years ago was Miss Mayne Tipton, oldest daughter of Mrs. Anna Tipton, of this city. She was widely known and greatly beloved throughout this entire section and her untimely death has caused the entire community to mourn with her loved ones. Financial trouble is said to have been the cause of Mr. Salzgeber's act.

Mrs. Salzgeber had just returned from their summer home in Michigan and it is not thought he had intended to kill his wife, although he had evidently made plans to destroy himself, as a note was left to a business associate telling that it was the only way out of his financial difficulties as he carried $78,000 life insurance and he directed how this should be applied to pay his indebtedness.

The Indianapolis story of the tragedy states that at an early hour in the morning other residents of the apartment heard the shots, but paid no attention to them, but when Mr. Salzgeber failed to show up at his office during the entire day a search was instituted and the two bodies found in bed with a shot from a pistol in the head of each.

Mrs. Salzgeber's daughter, Frances, aged 17, who had been with her in Michigan, did not return home with her mother, but arrived in Indianapolis a few hours after she learned of the death of her father and mother.

Besides her mother and daughter, Mrs. Salzgeber is survived by three sisters, Misses Fannie and Nell Tipton and Mrs. W. S. Carrington, and one brother, Will R., all of this city.

The double funeral was held at Lebanon, Indiana, Monday and was attended by Miss Nell Tipton, W. R. Tipton and Mrs. John Spear, the other children being unable to attend on account of the condition of Mrs. Tipton, who has been in a serious condition for some time.

Mr. Salzgeber lived in this city for a short time, where he was connected in business with I. F. Tabb. Leaving here about 20 years ago, he went to Indianapolis where he engaged in the printing and lithographing business and had made a huge success up until the time he received

75,000 Coal Miners To Return To Work

The soft coal strikers as virtually broken last night, but prospects were that the actual signing of an agreement between the United Mine Workers and operators, controlling an annual output of 60,000,000 tons, would be delayed until today. The signing of the contract will actually end the strike in part.

All details of the agreement were accepted in principle by both miners and operators and the actual draft of the contract was left to a subcommittee which continued its work into the night. The actual signing of the contract, President John L. Lewis, of the miners, said, is expected to follow a meeting today of the union's policy committee.

financial reverses a short time ago.

Mrs. Salzgeber was one of the most beloved women ever reared in Montgomery county. She was cultured and refined and made friends rapidly. She was devoted to her home and family and at all times led a life worthy of emulation. Among her friends here at her old home she was exceedingly popular, and her tragic end has caused many a heartache, but the memory of her lovely character will ever linger, although life be extinct.

1,200 Trainmen Quit At Corbin

Twelve hundred trainmen, members of the Big Four brotherhood, employed on the Cumberland division of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, left their trains at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

This ties up the great Harlan and Bell county coal districts.

The walkout was orderly. The trainmen claimed armed guards at the Louisville and Nashville shops at Corbin were endangering their lives.

They also claimed that they were being required to operate defective equipment in violation of the law and thus also endangering their lives.

Trainmen who walked out yesterday morning declared that their action was not a strike. They said they simply had refused to work until conditions were made safe.

E. F. Ford, chairman of the Corbin local of the Brotherhood of Trainmen, said that the men had been asked to operate bad equipment and that the guards at the Corbin shops had been abusive. He said that instances of guards trying to intimidate the union men, drawing guns on men operating engines and trains and cursing them had been reported to the union headquarters.

"The men simply have quit work until conditions are made safe for them to work," he said. "There is no strike at all. The men cannot be expected to work when their lives are instantly endangered by armed guards threatening them and defective equipment."

The strike of 1,200 trainmen on the Cumberland division of the L. & N. means a cutting off from the outside world of virtually 100,000 people in southeastern Kentucky. Of these approximately 70,000 are in the great coal fields of Harlan and Bell counties with a capacity output of approximately 1,000 carloads of coal a day.

The Cumberland Valley division is the division that Henry Ford, through his Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad recently sought to have the L. & N. agree to allow him to aid in operating. It is this division that serves the great United States Coal and Coke Company operating at Lynch, where the largest coal tipples in the world is located; the Banner Fork mines owned by Ford and approximately 175 other mines both large and small.

The cities and towns cut off entirely from train service with the outside world include Middlesboro, Pineville, Harlan, Lynch, Barbourville and Manchester.

Approximately forty state guards, under command of Major James K. Dillon, are in camp at London, the troops' home, within easy reach of Corbin and the coal fields. The soldiers were scheduled to go to Camp Henry Knox, near Louisville, but the plans were changed. The soldiers have been on duty in Bell and Whiteley counties.

Death Claims Mrs. Nannie R. Judy

Mrs. Nannie R. Judy died Sunday afternoon, August 13, at her home on Sycamore street as the result of a fractured hip which she received a few days ago from a fall in her room.

Funeral services were conducted this morning at 10 o'clock at the home by her pastor, Rev. Olus Hamilton, of the Baptist church, and burial was in Macphelah cemetery.

Mrs. Judy is survived by two sons, John A. and Robinson T. Judy; three grandchildren, J. S. Judy, Winchester; Mrs. B. W. Hunter, of this city, and Bascom Judy, of this city; four sisters, Mrs. Margaret Bruton and Mrs. J. W. Chenault, of this city; Mrs. Mary R. Saunders, of Sharpshurg; Mrs. J. W. Hedlin and Mrs. J. H. Power, of Flemingsburg; two brothers, R. C. Robinson, of this city, and J. M. Robinson, of New Decatur, Alabama.

For many years and to the time of her death, Mrs. Judy was a faithful, consistent member of the Baptist church, and as she was in church relations so she was in her home, her neighborhood, with kindred and friends. Hers was a life worthy of praise, an example it would be well to follow, and should we attempt a word-painting eulogy our effort would be to fail. It is sufficient to say a good woman, one of innumerable and helpful deeds, has fallen and the chair in church and home made vacant by her going is one that cannot be filled. Mrs. Judy was approaching 89 years of age when death came.

Tributes at this time are only of worth as milestones and an index pointing the way of life.

"Gather ye rosebuds while ye may.

Old time is still a-flying.

And this same flower that smiles to-day

Tomorrow will be dying.

"The leaves of the oak and the willow shall fade. Be scattered around, and together be laid.

And the old and the young, and the low and the high Shall moulder to dust and together shall die."

Thus it shall ever be. The modest, amiable, loving friend, wife, mother, has passed on to be with Him who had redeemed her by His own precious blood.

Killing In Powell Saturday Night

Emmett Gilbert, 28 years old, of the Cat creek section of Powell county, near Stanton, died at the Clark County Hospital at Winchester at 8:45 o'clock Sunday night from pistol wounds said to have been inflicted Saturday night by Tefer Daniels, 25 years old.

According to the story told by Gilbert, Daniels, who is the son of Dave Daniels, police court judge of Clay City, and former county judge of Powell county, and another man named Lacy came to his home on Cat creek Saturday afternoon. The men had been drinking, Gilbert said, and Daniels drew his pistol and threatened to shoot him. Some men standing nearby seized Daniels and Gilbert ran. Daniels and his companion then left the place.

That night, however, the men returned to Gilbert's home, where he operated a barber shop, and Daniels got a shave and hair cut. Gilbert said he thought "Daniels had gotten over his mad spell" and invited the men to look at a buggy he had purchased recently. As the men went to the buggy shed Daniels told Gilbert that he was going to kill him and again drew his pistol, it is alleged. Gilbert said he pleaded for his life and then told Lacy to hold Daniels while he ran. Daniels fired one shot, it is said, the bullet passing entirely through Gilbert's body.

Several hours later Daniels went to a store at Rosslyn and said he had killed Gilbert, it is said. Daniels also showed several cuts in his coat which he said had been made by Gilbert. After Gilbert was picked up it was found that the only weapon he had was a small pocket knife in his pocket, and which was not open. Authorities claim that Daniels cut his clothing after he shot Gilbert.

While Daniels was telling his story to the Rosslyn merchant some men entered the store, and Daniels, thinking they had come to arrest him, drew his revolver and threatened to shoot if they advanced on him. Then he backed out of the store and still is at large.

Some weeks ago Daniels is said to have shot at his brother, Oscar. The bullet went wild, however, and killed a cow. About a month ago Daniels sent word to the officials of Clark county and Winchester that he intended to sell all the moonshine in Winchester that he wanted to.

Gilbert is survived by a widow and six small children.

Trial of Hardman Set For Tomorrow

The examining trial of Scobes Hardman, 23 years old, son of a wealthy Bourbon county farmer, under arrest on a warrant charging murder in connection with the slaying of Leon Renaker, Winchester business man, July 25, will be held at Winchester Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The date for the trial was set at a conference with County Attorney H. H. Moore and Judge Smith Hays, one of Hardman's attorneys.

The defense requested that the preliminary trial be held today, but the later date was set at the suggestion of the commonwealth to allow more time to summon witnesses and prepare for the hearing.

Judge R. S. Scobee announced that he will vacate the bench at the preliminary trial because of a distant relationship with the accused man's family. Hardman's first name was given him because of this family relationship. H. B. Schriener, police judge of Winchester, will preside.

None of Renaker's insurance, consisting of more than $52,000 carried with seven different companies, has been paid, according to representatives of the insurance companies.

"TEN NIGHTS" COMING TO

THE TABB ON AUGUST 23

Speaking of "Ten Nights in a Barroom," which will be shown at the Tabb Wednesday, August 23, an old-timer remarked recently: "Until I saw this photoplay I could not imagine how they would get an eight-reel picture out of 'Ten Nights in a Barroom.' If they had simply filmed the play as they used to do it on the spoken stage it wouldn't run over 15 minutes, but they show on the screen all those interesting things they talked about in the play—the barroom fight, the grand opening of the bar, burning down the saloon, Joe Morgan chasing Simon Slade through the woods to wreak vengeance for the death of his little girl, and then that wonderful chase from log to log as the pursued and pursuer are swept down the river toward the rapids—and finally the breaking of the log jam, and the death struggle on the logs at the brink of the rapids."

Even the most blasé movie fan has to "sit up and take notice" when this log jam scene takes place, and the hardened cynic who calls motion pictures "fake" and "trick stuff" must admit that the scene where Joe Morgan chases Simon Slade out on the logs in the river and battles with him until the breaking of the jam below them forces both men to fight for their lives in the raging current which threatens to sweep both to death is real.

It is real and the players say never again for them. The script called for it. It must be done, and it was done, but it brought them too close to death to make them care to repeat it, but the public benefits by this realistic portrayal of what a log jam suddenly released in a mad river current, dashing into the rapids, looks like—especially with two human beings, intent on each other's life, in the midst of it, trying for a fighting footing on the unmanagable logs.
